Implementation of the EU Deforestation Regulation

Resources

The European Commission has developed resources to facilitate compliance with the EUDR available at Implementation of the EU Deforestation Regulation. These include:

- a Guidance Document and a downloadable Frequently Asked Questions Document to support operators and traders, particularly SMEs, with the requirements of this new Regulation.
- EUDR Compliance: Understanding your company position in beef, cocoa, coffee, palm oil, rubber, soy, and wood supply chains: An overview of how the obligations apply, depending on the company type (operator/trader), size (non-SME/SME) and position in the supply chain (first placing/downstream), illustrated through 11 supply chain scenarios
- EUDR supply chain infographics (5th edition): Understanding your position in beef, cocoa, coffee, palm oil, rubber, soy and wood supply chains
- EUDR Information System User Guide: Provides EU importers with step-by-step information on how to create and manage due diligence statements, and brief descriptions of program functions, capabilities, and procedures.

The European Union aims to ensure that it does not contribute to deforestation, both in the EU and in non-EU countries, by introducing new rules on imports of products that are known to be important causes of deforestation. These products include cattle, cocoa, coffee, palm oil, rubber, soya, and wood (and related products such as chocolate, soybean oil, and cattle meat). Studies have been carried out in diverse countries and value chains to better understand the potential implications of the new rules, and the strategies that are being put in place to comply with them. This summary aims to help interested parties find these resources as they become available, and to access official sources of information. The list of resources will be updated regularly as new information becomes available.
