What is changing and why?

The European Union (EU) has approved the import of foods, food ingredients, feed, and products containing genetically modified (GM) soyabeans GMB151 × DAS-44406 and MON 94313-8, and has renewed the authorisation of those containing maize MON 87460-4. The authorisation does not permit the cultivation of these soyabeans and maize in the EU.

The approvals are based on favourable opinions by the European Food Safety Authority that these GM products are safe for human and animal health, and for the environment. There are no nutritional concerns associated with consuming these soyabeans and maize.

Timeline

These authorisations and reauthorisations apply from 23 September 2026 and will remain valid for 10 years (until September 2036).
