

Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD)

Published by AGRINFO on 04 Jan 2023; Revised 07 Apr 2026

Directive (EU) 2026/470 as regards certain corporate sustainability reporting requirements and certain corporate sustainability due diligence requirements

Directive (EU) 2022/2464 as regards corporate sustainability reporting

Directive 2013/34/EU on the annual financial statements, consolidated financial statements and related reports of certain types of undertakings

What is changing and why?

The CSRD sets out rules to improve the quality, clarity and comparability of companies' reporting on how their activities affect the environment and society (Directive 2022/2464). This helps investors, civil society organisations, consumers and other stakeholders to evaluate the sustainability performance of companies.

Since it was first adopted, this Directive has been subject to a series of changes (see full report). The latest revision in February 2026 introduced the following key changes:

Only the biggest companies have to report on sustainability. This includes EU-based companies with more than €450 million turnover and at least 1,000 employees. It also includes non-EU companies that earn over €450 million in the EU for 2 years in a row, or that have a branch or subsidiary in the EU with more than €200 million turnover.

Companies must provide detailed sustainability information. They must explain both:

- how their activities impact the environment and people, and
- how these impacts create financial risks or opportunities for the company.

This is called “double materiality”. Companies must also show how their strategy supports global climate goals, including limiting global warming to 1.5°C and reaching climate neutrality by 2050. They must describe any negative impacts they cause, and what they are doing to reduce them.

The reporting must follow European Sustainability Reporting Standards (ESRS). These cover environmental issues (climate change, pollution, water), social issues (working conditions, human rights), and governance (business ethics, risk management). The EU will simplify these standards by the end of 2026.

Smaller companies are protected. Companies with fewer than 1,000 employees are protected from large companies asking them for too much sustainability information. Smaller companies only have to provide the information set out in more limited voluntary sustainability standards (to be adopted in July 2026), and can refuse extra requests.

Timeline

Most EU-based companies that are required to report on corporate sustainability must do so from 2028 (regarding the 2027 financial year). For non-EU companies required to report on corporate sustainability, this obligation applies from 2029 (regarding the 2028 financial year).

For more information see the full record on the AGRINFO website – where you can also view the latest AGRINFO Update newsletters and search the database.

Disclaimer: Under no circumstances shall COLEAD be liable for any loss, damage, liability or expense incurred or suffered that is claimed to have resulted from the use of information available on this website or any link to external sites. The use of the website is at the user's sole risk and responsibility. This information platform was created and maintained with the financial support of the European Union. Its contents do not, however, reflect the views of the European Union.