Update

Under the new organic regime of the European Union (EU), from 1 January 2025 control authorities and control bodies must be listed under Regulation 2021/1378 as officially approved (recognised) to conduct controls and certification of organic products in non-EU countries.

- Bio Latina Certificadora
- Primus Auditing Operations Mexico
- PT BIOCert Indonesia.

This Regulation also removes Balkan Biocert Macedonia DOOEL Skopje from that list and, for certain control bodies, extends the products they can certify in the countries where they are permitted to operate.

What is changing?

To certify organic products for export, control authorities and control bodies in non-EU countries must be approved (recognised) by the EU as being able to carry out the necessary controls to certify that products comply with EU organic production rules.

The EU maintains a list of approved control authorities and control bodies which is regularly updated to include new authorities/bodies that have demonstrated their competence to carry out controls.

The recognised bodies are listed under Implementing Regulation 2021/1378.

Timeline

The three most recently approved control bodies under Regulation 2025/882 are recognised from 18 May 2025.

Recommended Actions

It is critically important for organic food operators in non-EU countries to monitor the recognition process, and to liaise closely with their control authorities and control bodies.

The EU regularly produces consolidated versions of the list of control authorities and control bodies. For the latest available version, visit Regulation 2021/1378 and click on “Current consolidated version”. Operators must ensure they use the most up-to-date version.

Background

The EU Organic Regulation 2018/848 brought in a fundamental change from an equivalence regime to a compliance regime, with a 3-year transition period after it was applied on 1 January 2022 (see New EU Organic Regulation explained). Under this Regulation, control authorities and control bodies in non-EU countries must be approved (recognised) by the EU as being able to carry out the necessary controls to certify that products comply with EU organic production rules.

The EU Organic Regulation is the basic Act that lays down the EU rules on organic production and labelling of organic products. It revises and strengthens the controls system, trade regime, and production rules that had been in place since 2007. It brought in a fundamental change to the regulatory approach, moving from the principle of equivalence to the principle of compliance. The earlier Regulation (EC) 834/2007 recognised that organic goods could be produced in ways that were different, but equivalent in terms of their outcome and alignment with organic principles. Under the new Organic Regulation, this changes to a system of compliance: producers in non-EU countries that do not have equivalence recognised in a trade agreement with the EU, or are not recognised as an equivalent country under Regulation 834/2007, will have to conform with exactly the same set of rules as those in the EU. For further information see New EU Organic Regulation explained.
