What is changing and why?

New European Union (EU) rules on packaging and packaging waste (PPWR, Regulation 2025/40) require each EU Member State to establish a national register of packaging producers. The registers will monitor producers' compliance with Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) obligations, under which producers are financially responsible for managing their packaging waste. Registers potentially may include non-EU producers of packaged food products, at the discretion of the individual Member State.

The draft proposal includes standardised registration and reporting formats to make EPR requirements more consistent and reduce the administrative burden. Information about packaging producers, how they meet their EPR obligations, and, where relevant, their authorised representative or producer responsibility organisation will have to be registered.

Producers will also have to report the type and quantity of packaging they place on the market each year. For composite or multi-material packaging, the weight of each material must be reported. Where packaging has a digital product passport, this information can be used for reporting.

The proposed formats also incorporate EPR reporting requirements for certain single-use plastic products, such as food containers, wrappers, beverage containers, cups, and lightweight plastic carrier bags.
